MTN Fundraiser

It's that time of the year when the MTN is a bit strapped for cash so it's fundraising time again. As we're all still recovering from the "silly season" we're going to give the mountain muso's a well deserved break (after all the hard work at the P&C Dance late last year). The fundraiser is taking a slightly different shape this time and will be a Disco Mania with flashing lights and funky dance music from the 70's right through to today's dance stuff. We'd love to see all you teens joining in and strutting your stuff.

The Bar will be open and the Forest Fairies will be doing the catering. Tickets at $5 per head - Adults (children U16 free) will be available from the Post Office or you can pay at the door. Mt Glorious residents can also buy tickets at their Residents' Association get together on 29th January.

There'll be prizes for the best disco costume, raffles and a karaoke competition so dress up in your disco gear, practice your favourite disco song and put on your dancing shoes for a great night.

MTN Computer Terminal (not quite) illness

The MTN computer has been quite sick for a while and was really struggling through the last few issues and recently bit the dust. The good news is that it's made a full recovery and now has a spanking big new hard drive, more memory (wish I could get some of that!) and a new CD burner for a lot less than buying a new computer. The cost ($550) has depleted the funds somewhat, although not as desperate as last year, MTN will need your community support at the Disco Mania fundraiser on 26th Feb to ensure that it keeps going throughout the year.

Cheers,

Di

Fond farewells and many, many thanks to Michele Dale who has provided the bulk of content for the Mt News over the last forever long....

So, Michele, how about some "distance" contributions eh?

Farewell...for now

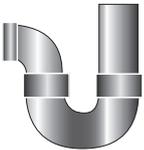

Hi everyone, we are leaving this warm wonderful Mountain community for some time to take up residence in Innisfail ('Green like you've never seen' apparently!) and I would like to invite any of our Mountain friends to a farewell 'do' and bush dance at Mt Nebo Hall on Saturday, February 19th, from 5:00pm onwards. Since I shall be running around like the proverbial chicken trying to get ready to leave at the end of February, no catering so please BYO drinks and a plate to share (please take it to the Blue Room under the hall on the day). Entertainment by the fabulous 'Kobble Creek Bushband' (thanks John and Jenny!). Please RSVP to Jenny on 3289 9495. Would love to catch up with you all before we go! cheers,

Michele

Bulletin Board Bits

The Board population has stagnated at just over 50 residents, so sign up your friends today for instant News and Views from the virtual Mountain community. Not much small talk lately, but discussions have ranged over various subjects including recipes for reindeer food, giveaway bee hives, bird feeding (just don't!), sadness at Christmas, the Tsunami, and a fabulous 'spider catcher' (The Australian museum have a good spider info site:

<http://www.amonline.net.au/factsheets/spiders.htm> with a link to an interesting environmentally friendly, humane spider catcher: <http://www.spidercatcher.com.au/faq.html>). Join up, we need more electronic folk to chat to, buy from, sell to, laugh with, answer questions....email dalesdirect@yahoo.com.au for an invite. It's free, no spam, and you can put up messages or just read without ever posting anything yourself. They're a quiet bunch but if anyone can help you, you can be assured of a quick and very useful reply to your message.

MOUNT NEBO SCHOOL SCORES AT YOUTH ART AWARDS

Congratulations to the students in Grades 4 to 7 who were successful in taking out the $1000 School Scholarship in the Collaborative Section of the 2004 Pine Rivers Youth Art Awards held in late October. The winning work titled "Native Technology" displayed the usual artistic talent that is being produced so regularly by students of the school and they are once again to be congratulated on their efforts.

GIANT PUPPET PAGEANT GREAT SUCCESS

One of my great disappointments over the last year was missing the puppet pageant on 30 October due to my involvement with Rotary's Music by the Lake on the Valley floor. Whilst a clash of events in our busy community is always on the cards, Council is hoping to develop with its new website a capacity to record a schedule of various events so that the co-inciding of major activities can be avoided. I have had significant feedback regarding this event which over the many months of planning and hard work delivered a spectacle to behold. I was also pleased that Council was able to provide financial support for the event and had arranged for as many puppets as possible to participate in the Pine Rivers Christmas Parade held at Strathpine on Saturday November 27th. The response to their participation in the parade was fantastic. Congratulations to Ingrid on the inspirational idea for the pageant and to all who then put it together so well.

MT NEBO PATH WORKS

The long awaited pathway refurbishment and safety fencing between the hall and the store has now been completed. Council officers have been liaising with the residents association on the most appropriate form of safety fencing and the black mesh panels installed are the most appropriate solution given the circumstances and need to comply with relevant safety standards.

SEQ REGIONAL PLAN - WHAT'S IN IT FOR US

Whilst only in draft form, the Regional Plan released on 27 October last year has significant implications for many parts of the Shire. Urban footprints have been designated around Samford and Dayboro Villages predominantly along the existing boundaries defined in Council's own planning scheme and identify areas for urban growth over the next 20 years. A larger area extending roughly around Closeburn/Cedar Creek/Highvale/Wights Mountain/Camp Mountain is included as Rural Living which identifies areas predominantly for continuing rural residential development. Beyond these areas a designation of Rural Landscape and Rural Production Area has been created over the balance of the western areas of the Shire which effectively constrains any rural residential or higher density development. This has some interesting implications for parts of the mountain rim. In the transport infrastructure section, mention of a Western Bypass also raised its head AGAIN with very little detail that advances this issue further than we are already aware. I continue to hold a strong view that any major bypass of Brisbane should be west of the D'Aguilar range and from my discussions with my elected colleagues in Brisbane, and at State and Federal level, they hold a similar view. Council is giving consideration to the detail of the Regional Plan but residents are also encouraged to provide feedback to the Office of Urban Management by the closing date of 28th February 2005. Details are on the OUM website www.oum.qld.gov.au but please do not hesitate to call me if you feel I may be able to assist.

FORMER "OGLE" PROPERTY UPDATE

As many would by now be aware, ownership of this property is held by an entity called Tendiris Pty Ltd which late last year was granted leave by the Planning and Environment Court to file an appeal against Council's original refusal of the Ogle development application. Council has filed an Entry of Appearance (to defend that appeal) and has instructed its solicitors to defend its decision to refuse the application to develop the subject land. Subsequent to all of these latest events I have received a number of letters from residents encouraging Council to maintain its position with respect to its original refusal. This goes without saying and my own position remains consistent with this. Without going into further detail given the current legal proceedings, the outcome of this matter is now one for the Court, not Council. It is also interesting to note that, to date, there have been only two co-respondents (original submitters) who have elected to become parties to the appeal. Please give me a call if I can be of further assistance on this matter.

20 Alternatives to Punishment Numbers 12 to 15

16. DEFUSE THE SITUATION WITH LAUGHTER

example: If your child is mad at you, invite him to express his anger in a playful pillow fight with you. Play your part by surrendering dramatically. Laughter helps resolve anger and feelings of powerlessness.

17. MAKE A DEAL, NEGOTIATE

example: If you're ready to leave the playground and your child is having fun, reach an agreement on the number of times she may go down the slide before leaving.

18. DO MUTUAL CONFLICT-RESOLUTION

Discuss ongoing conflicts with your children, state your own needs, and ask for their help in finding solutions. Determine rules together. Hold family meetings.

19. REVISE YOUR EXPECTATIONS

Young children have intense feelings and needs, and are naturally loud, curious, messy, willful, impatient, demanding, creative, forgetful, fearful, self-centred, and full of energy. Try to accept them as they are.

20. TAKE A PARENTAL TIME-OUT

Leave the room, and do whatever is needed to regain your sense of composure and good judgment (example: call a friend, cry, meditate, take a shower).

Bush Tales

It's about this time of the summer that the results of spring start to become obvious. Kids of different kinds seem to be all around the place, some rasping all day, some rasping all night, and others just quietly trying not to get eaten.

The Kingfishers returned from their New Guinea winter vacation and everything points to the summer season having been a pretty good one so far. They spent a lot of the early summer scaring away every goanna and snake in sight. (Poor goannas. It's a hard life for a reptile. Some of their speedy escapes down tall trees, with the birds in hot pursuit all the way looked pretty hairy.) And the Kingfishers' efforts paid off with two healthy kids . . . kids that demand a lot of attention. Now the parents have to find food for the whole family and keep up regular attacks on enemies. That is some schedule! Just imaging having to spend all day looking for bugs and only taking time off to fight any goannas that come within range. When night-time comes they must kick their feet up and take a very deep breath. (Come to think of it, parenthood is probably pretty much the same whatever animal you are!)

When the Kingfishers head off to bed the Tawny Frogmouths get up. And they've been busy too. A fine family of four can be seen roosting in the trees during the day, catching up on some sleep before a busy night. Like all kids, the youngsters always seem to be restless, pushing each other and Mum and Dad up and down the perch. The parents must be very patient. I think if I was trying to sleep and I kept getting pushed and shoved by the kids I'd get pretty snappy, but they always seem to be as calm as can be. Come night-time, they get up and silently go about their business getting enough for everyone to eat. The kids just seem to sit around playing with each other on a perch, rasping whenever Mum or Dad comes near. ("What's for dinner Dad? Cockroaches again? Yum!")

If you are a baby Brush-turkey though, there's no happy family. You're on your own from the day you're born. Orphans from birth, they struggle out into the world alone, downy brown and fist-size. One wandered through the garden on New Year's Eve, looking a bit stunned and easy tucker for a hungry dingo (not that different from some of the local humans the next day, after New Year's Eve celebrations). Cute and with a lovely place to grow up (the turkey, not the humans), we hope we'll see it again some time. The Kingfishers and Frogmouths will, no doubt, be back too.

Playgroup News

Playgroup is back on in 2005 after a short break. Mountain parents can enjoy a cup of tea whilst their children play together in the Blue Room under Mt Nebo Hall or out in the playground. Everyone is welcome, please bring $2 to cover hall costs and a plate of (fairly!) healthy nibbles to share. We meet every Wednesday at 10:00am till noon. The PRSC mobile library parks outside the hall every second week, so you can check out the books at the same time (from 12:30 on). Just don't park up there when the bus is due...!

Looking after Life on the Mountains – ask MEPA

MEPA (Mt Nebo/Mt Glorious Environment Protection Association) is a not-for-profit association concerned with environmental issues in our mountain communities. MEPA answers your questions about bush regeneration, weeds, local plants...etc!

Email questions to askmepa@yahoo.com.au or write to ASKMEPA, PO Box 29, Mt Nebo Q 4520.

Q. We have an area of mostly lawn that we are sick of mowing and would like to return (as much as possible) to native bush. Is this easy? Where do we start? Do we need to plant stuff or do we just 'let it go'?

A. Without seeing your particular situation it is a bit difficult to generalise. You need to consider your bushfire risk, keeping a clear area around any buildings. However, 'clean' bushland can be more fire-safe than areas with rampant weedy growth, particularly if you take care to rake up fallen bark and leaves, removing ground-level fuel. If you have a reasonable sized block with good breaks (i.e. tracks) you may also be able to manage it with controlled burns (this requires collaboration with the local fire brigade). Returning lawn to bushland is a rewarding and ultimately time-saving activity but does require a reasonable amount of work initially, plus constant vigilance against weedy invaders.

To manage your revegetating/rehabilitating patch, you should first establish definite boundaries around it, either by mowing a 1m or more track around the outside (and perhaps through the centre, depending on the size), and/or by planting a border of hardy plants (e.g. Lomandras) around the outside. Such borders will serve several purposes. Both will define your working area, and may also establish that you are indeed doing this 'on purpose' and thereby fend off questions from neighbours who wonder why you are going feral. Secondly, you need decent access to your patch so that you can manage it. Thirdly, many of us have constant problems with weeds invading the margins of our properties from adjacent areas: a dense border planting helps to keep them out with minimal effort from you.

Do you need to plant? Again this will depend on the amount of natural seeding/regeneration that happens on your patch. Sometimes it is just a matter of letting the available seedstock come up by itself, lending a helping hand by removing weeds and any vigorous vines that threaten to overtake the plant whilst it is small. Sometimes it is nigh on impossible to remove the weeds manually (think Madeira vine) and in these cases careful, selective use of herbicide is the only practical answer unfortunately. MEPA is very happy to assist you in identifying native regrowth on your property, or any other rehabilitation questions, free of charge. If you are not getting good regrowth, it may help if you plant; make sure you use local species. This need not be an expensive exercise, and whilst you can get local species from several excellent nurseries (including Kumbartcho, and a couple of Mt Nebo suppliers), often you can easily transplant local seedlings by 'rescuing' those that self-seed in areas you don't need them e.g. your veggie patch, or pathways that you need to keep clear. The native holly is particularly prolific when it comes to spreading its seedlings around.

Take advantage of MEPA's 'Do Your Block' program to get some advice on bringing back a bit of bushland on your property and watch the flora and fauna return.

The opinions and viewpoints expressed in these articles are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily represent those of MEPA members.

News from MEPA

This will be my last 'News' as we are leaving the Mountain to take up residence for some time in Innisfail. I would like to thank MEPA members and mountain residents for their very positive support of all our efforts during my time as president, and secretary before that. Dominic Hyde (Vice President) will take over my role until a replacement is elected. We have made some very positive progress in the last year, including:

- * a continuing presence informing and hopefully entertaining residents through regular Mountain News contributions ('Desirable Locals', showcasing our local native flora, 'AskMepa', an informative Q&A style article answering resident's questions about looking after our mountain bushland, and 'News from MEPA', reporting MEPA's activities and meeting dates);
- * 'Reveg Rambles', where local residents meet for a guided bushwalk identifying local native plants and discussing land management before chatting over afternoon tea;
- * production of a CDROM 'Plants of Mt Nebo/Mt Glorious' featuring colour photographs of our local native plants (still only $5! Available by order from dalesdirect@yahoo.com.au);
- * 'Roadside Reveg' - a project to rehabilitate the roadside vegetation funded by a $17 000 grant from The Australian Government Envirofund, and leading to further contractual work with Greening Australia, Main Roads and Powerlink;

- * Contributions to local environmental issues and representations to various local and state governments regarding the management of Brisbane Forest Park, the Regional Forest Agreement, and inappropriate property development.
- * Initiation and development of a proposal for a Biosphere for the D'Aguilar Range.
- * 'Do Your Block' - a service, supported by PRSC, for local residents who would like some assistance on managing bushland on their blocks or advice on planting local native plants in their gardens (ph Maggie on 3289 8175).

It is hard to believe our little group can have so much going on! It is only possible through the expertise and dedication of our members, to whom I am very grateful. Whilst we all have many and varied demands and constraints in our lives, these people believe so strongly in the value and importance of our surroundings that they constantly find time to dedicate themselves to looking after our unique Mountain environment. What a fantastic and inspiring bunch they are. Make a New Year's resolution to join them and cheer them on, or perhaps to pitch in and offer whatever skills you have to help, or perhaps you would just like to improve your knowledge of local wildlife, plants, or land management issues. You are needed and welcome!

Take care, and thanks again,

Michele Dale

The Wilson Report

Welcome Back. It's back to school and the start of a new year for everybody. During the holidays, the office block and internal library walls have been repainted at Mount Nebo State School ($10,000).

Have your say – draft SE Queensland Regional Plan. Residents are interested in having their say about the draft Regional Plan and who have access to the internet, tap into my new website www.geoffwilson-mp.com and go to the public consultations section. The website has direct links to various consultations including the draft SE Queensland Regional Plan. You have until 28 February 2005 to provide your feedback on the Plan. Make sure you have your say on these important issues which affect all residents.

Boost to Brisbane volunteer fire fighters in outer-urban areas. Volunteer fire fighters across Brisbane will benefit from a mid year funding boost of almost $3 million to the Queensland Fire & Rescue Service. Emergency Services Minister Chris Cummins said the $2.95 million Bushfire Response Enhancement Package would deliver a range of initiatives in the high risk rural/urban interface areas – dubbed the i-Zone by fire fighters. The Bushfire Response Enhancement Package will boost the capacity of emergency services to respond in this critical area. Nearly a million dollars will also be spent on 10 i-Zone 4x4 medium attack fire trucks which will be strategically located at positions around South East Queensland to enable rapid deployment as a strike team. Parts of Brisbane were really impacted by bushfires late last year. By having this strike team available extra resources will be able to be brought to areas where they are needed and help relieve local fire fighters. In addition to these extra trucks, fire fighters will also have access to three 4x4 4,000 litre pumper with 12,000 litre mobile dams worth nearly a million dollars. Having water more readily available means less time spent sourcing water and more time fighting fires.

IN CLOSING, I welcome people contacting me with their views, as well as seeking information or help with any State Government matter. Mount Glorious COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION

The objects for which our Association was established were stated at the time of incorporation as follows:-

- (a) To advance the legitimate interests of its members
- (b) To protect the natural beauty, the flora and fauna of Mt Glorious
- (c) To promote understanding in the wider community of South-East Queensland of the unique and sensitive nature of the rainforest closest to Brisbane
- (d) To enhance the spirit of friendly solidarity among its members.

Following election in July 2004 the present committee organised more regular meetings mainly in relation to friendly solidarity including illustrated talks at Camp Constable hall by Christine Nicklin on her prize winning quilting; Barry Norton on his travels in remote Ethiopia; and a film by Bob MacLennan on ancient technology and art in the East Sepik province of New Guinea. We welcomed visits to our meetings by Councillor Bob Millar and State Member Geoff Wilson. There were 37 paid up members in 2004.

Outstanding community issues for discussion for 2005 in accordance with our established objects include (1) removal of Chinese elms and privets from State and Shire road reserves; (2) because of demonstrated spread to rain forest increased community assistance in removing these plus madeira vine, cat's claw and ochona from major foci on private land. (3) maintenance of a cleared walking track in Bryce's road.

The Association is anxious to inform the community on what may be controversial issues, such as proposed large scale developments, and to provide a forum for discussion.

Annual General Meeting

This year's AGM will be held in Camp Constable hall on Monday February 14 at 7.30pm. Our State member Geoff Wilson and Shire Councillor Bob Millar have agreed to attend from 8pm once the formal business of the evening has been completed. They will update the community on developments in SE Queensland and in the Shire relevant to residents.
